RE: Document Examination — Charles L. Leary

Dear Mr. Handshoe,

At your request I have examined the questioned documents to determine whether or not they were signed by Charles L. Leary. Below please find an account of all documents examined, along with my findings.

Questioned:

1. Copy of Charles Leary's First Amended Counterclaim As Well As Answer & Defenses to Douglas Handshoe's Third Amended Complaint for Damages, Declaratory and Injunctive Relief (Signature located on page 22)
2. Copy of Certificate of Service to Charles Leary's First Amended Counterclaim As Well As Answer & Defenses to Douglas Handshoe's Third Amended Complaint for Damages, Declaratory and Injunctive Relief (Signature located on page 23)

Exemplars: Documents bearing accepted genuine signatures and/or writings by Charles Leary

1. Notice of Motion To: Douglas Handshoe, stamped in upper right corner "Court Administration Nov 26 2013 Halifax, N.S."
2. Copy of letter from Trout Point Lodge to Honourable Justice Pierre Muise, dated 07/19/2013
3. Copy of Notice of Motion To: Douglas Handshoe, dated 07/19/2013
4. Copy of letter from Trout Point Lodge to Prothonotary, Supreme Court of Nova Scotia, dated 07/19/2013
5. Color copy of Notice of Application in Court To: Douglas K. Handshoe, dated 02/08/2013
6. Affidavit of Charles L. Leary, dated 01/23/2013
7. Notice of Application in Court To: Douglas K. Handshoe, dated 01/23/2013

13. 1st Amended Statement of Claim, dated 09/01/2011
14. Notice of Action To: Doug Handshoe, dated 08/09/2011
15. Statement of Claim, dated 08/09/2011
16. Copy of Affidavit of Charles Leary, dated 06/13/2011

Document Transfer: The Questioned and Known Exemplars were received on Friday, November 3, 2017 via U.S. Postal Service Priority 2-Day mailing. Copies of all documents received will remain in my file.

Comments: To establish that a particular person wrote a questioned signature and/or writing, a comparison between questioned and known writings must show substantial agreement in sufficient handwriting characteristics to identify the writer and eliminate the possibility of another writer. This examination covers obvious and inconspicuous handwriting characteristics.

Examination: All Known writing samples and Questioned writings were examined under magnification. Corresponding handwriting characteristics (including fluency, angle, form, speed, proportions, connecting strokes, spacing, beginnings, endings, alignment, idiosyncrasies) were compared in accordance with established scientific methods. Fundamental characteristics of pressure pattern and line quality were unable to be analyzed in all documents due to existence of copies and/or unavailability of originals.

A Worksheet was compiled for the purpose of comparison and evaluation. Images contained in the Worksheet may have been enhanced in Size, Contrast and/or Sharpness. The purpose of these enhancements is only to increase the clarity of the image for analysis and subsequent demonstrative purposes in this report and its attachments.

(Note: All documents were scanned into the examiner's computer at actual size. In order to maintain consistency in demonstrating the size of all writings, each document was opened in Preview and "Scaled Up" (increased in viewable magnification) once. Signatures were then copied electronically onto the Worksheet attached.)

Findings: Handwriting consistency exists among each set of the accepted genuine signatures, with variation. They are fluent, executed at a swift speed, with a rightward slant. K9, K12 and K14 have the signer's name printed underneath the signature. The signatures themselves, however, are illegible.

The Questioned signatures are written at a normal to swift speed, with a vertical slant. They are partially legible, the structure being vastly inconsistent with the sixteen Exemplars provided for comparison. Inconsistencies are found in the areas of fluency, angle, form, speed, proportions, connecting strokes, beginnings, and endings. See attached Worksheet titled "Comparison Worksheet — Charles L. Leary."

Questioned Document Q2, in addition to the signature of Charles Leary, contains the handwritten word "OCTOBER." The handwriting of this word did not appear to be consistent with the printed writing found in K9, K12 and K14. At my request, you provided me with the following documents for review, which were received as attachments via email on November 7, 2017.

Exemplars (Daniel G. Abel): Documents bearing accepted genuine signatures and/or writings by Daniel G. Abel

1. Electronic copy of Affidavit of Service, dated 02/21/2013
2. Electronic copy of Joinder in Removal of Defendant Daniel Abel, dated 06/14/2013
3. Electronic copy of Notice & Evidence of Plaintiff Douglas Handshoe's Refusal to Accept USPS Certified Mail and Certificate of Service, dated 06/21/2013, with copy of Ready Post envelope attached

Findings (Daniel G. Abel): Handwriting consistency exists among each set of the accepted genuine signatures of Mr. Daniel Abel, with minimal variation. They are executed at a normal speed, with a vertical slant. The signature of Mr. Daniel Abel, as well as writing found on the copy of the envelope, is written in a block, upper case print, consistent with the word "OCTOBER" found on Q2. In addition to consistencies in angle, speed, proportion and method of execution, similar unique characteristics were found to be consistent between the Questioned "OCTOBER" and Mr. Abel's writing. These unique characteristics were found in construction of the letter "O," "C," "E," and "R."

Opinion: Based upon the documents submitted and examined, it is my professional opinion that it is Probable that the writer of the Known Charles L. Leary signatures Did Not sign the Questioned documents.

Furthermore, there are Indications that Daniel G. Abel may be the writer of the Questioned "OCTOBER" on Q2.

Opinion Terminology: (Recommended terminology of the American Society for Testing and Materials in expressing opinions resulting from handwriting examinations)

Identification: This is the highest degree of confidence expressed by document examiners in handwriting comparisons. The examiner is certain, based on evidence contained in the handwriting, that the writer of the known material actually wrote the writing in question.

Strong Probability: The evidence is very persuasive, yet some critical feature or quality is missing so that an identification is not in order; however, the examiner is virtually certain that the questioned and known writings were written by the same individual.

Probable: The evidence contained in the handwriting points rather strongly toward the questioned and known writings having been written by the same individual; however, it falls short of the "virtually certain" degree of confidence.

Indications: A body of writing has few features, which are of significance for handwriting comparison purposes, but those features are in agreement with another body of writing.

No Conclusion: This is the zero point of the confidence scale. It is used when there are significantly limiting factors, such as disguise in the questioned and/or known writing or lack of comparable writing, and the examiner does not have even a leaning one way or another.

Indications Did Not: This carries the same weight as the indications term — that is, it is a very weak opinion. The questioned writing has few features, which are of significance for handwriting comparison purposes, and those features are not in agreement with the known writing.

Probably Did Not: The evidence points rather strongly toward the questioned and known writings having not been written by the same individual; but, as in the probable range above, the evidence is not quite up to the “virtual certain” range.

Strong Probability Did Not: This carries the same weight as strong probability on the identification side of the scale — that is, the examiner is virtually certain that the questioned and known writings were not written by the same individual. The evidence is very persuasive, yet some critical feature or quality is missing so that a total elimination is not in order.

Elimination: This, like the identification, is the highest degree of confidence expressed by document examiners in handwriting comparisons. By using this expression the examiner denotes no doubt in his opinion that the questioned and known writings were not written by the same individual. The examiner has no reservations whatsoever, and although he is prohibited from using the word “fact,” he is certain, based on evidence contained in the handwriting, that the writer of the known material did not write the writing in question.

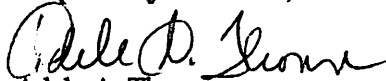

Conclusion: My opinions are drawn on the evidence presented to me for examination. These opinions may be subject to modification if unforeseen evidence is observed on original documents that were not available for the purpose of this examination, or if other evidence is presented to me after-the-fact indicating a result not consistent with my findings.

Attached to this report are a copy of my comparison Worksheet, statement of qualifications and my Fee Agreement reflecting the rate of compensation for all services I shall render in this case unless otherwise agreed upon in writing.

Please notify me as soon as possible should it become necessary for me to appear in Court so that I may secure that date on my schedule. Once notified, if time permits, I can prepare exhibits with enlargements to graphically demonstrate how I came to my opinions as stated above.
